

MARYLAND. The Coming Political Struggle—Bad Doings of the Convention, &c. BALTIMORE, August 12.—Maryland is destined to pass through, this fall, one of the most exciting and important political contests she has ever experienced.

When the new Constitution prepared by the Convention in session at Annapolis is ratified, as it undoubtedly will be, every prominent Union man, from the highest to the lowest, now in office will be turned out, and their places filled by men who not only sympathized with the South during the Rebellion, but sympathize with it still—men who would have rejoiced at beholding the Union severed, and would now exult at the establishment of a Southern Confederacy, with Jeff. Davis at its head.

Commodore Hollis, who commanded that celebrated "steam-ram," known as the Merrimack, in the Rebel navy, and recently elected to the chieftainship of Judge Scott's new City Court, in a conversation recently with a gentleman, said he had no expectation of the South ever going to war with the Union—meaning his Rebel friends of the South—as soon as the Democratic party become as fixed and strong as it is at present in Maryland, would achieve their independence by common consent and a pacific vote of Congress.

This is the sentiment of the man who fills a lucrative office in the tribunal of justice; one who was an officer of the Federal navy before the war; who deserted his post, went South afterwards, swore allegiance to a treasonable cause, fought to destroy the Union, and being whipped, comes back, hypocritically takes the oath of allegiance to this Government again, and sustains upon it. This is not only the sentiment of Commodore Hollis, but it runs throughout the entire dominant party in our Commonwealth.

The will is good, and power alone is wanting to enable such leaders as at present compose the Constitutional Convention at Annapolis to sever the Union by establishing a Southern Confederacy. The truth is, there is no loyalty on the part of the Union men, and they have long since ceased to respect our national flag, and only support the Government because they dare not openly rebel against it. It is fair to the Union men of Maryland, or just to the nation, that a State which territory contains the National Capital should be in the hands of persons so inimical to the Union, so lost to even decent respect for our republican institutions?

Why is all this unprecedented pains and burthenome expense of getting the militia under arms—under the extent probably of thirty thousand—if it be not to have them in readiness to be used for some emergency? So great a military power, disciplined and controlled by men known to be disloyal—officers even returned Rebels—how can it be used for any good near the National Capital. It may be said, with truth, there is less respect now for the Union, upon the part of those who always were secessionists and favored the Rebellion, than there was before the war.

The disposition of the jury in the Surratt case is just as was expected. A singular fact is noticeable, that scarcely a Democrat or Southern sympathizer can be found here who does not rejoice even at the very news of escape made by the accused.

From recent demonstrations at Democratic ward meetings, croquet balls, raisings, etc., it would seem serious trouble may be expected when the contest wages warmer during the coming fall. There are causes at work which, in all probability, will bring about a collision of parties, and the result will be a war.

From the past few days, it is now clear and very pleasant. Remarkably good health prevails. Business is dull. A fair fall trade is expected. Receipts of wheat large, and prices declining. Never in the history of Baltimore has there been known such full promise of peaches. They are already vastly abundant and a drug.

The "Old Public Functionary" on Old Rye. We have received the following letter in the regular course of mail from Philadelphia, purporting to come from that "Old Public Functionary," James Buchanan, "per J. D.":

PHILADELPHIA, August 12, 1867.—DEAR SIR—The Herald of August 10th, containing the article on the "Old Public Functionary," has been forwarded to me. I have read it with interest, and I hasten to reply to your Buffalo correspondent, who makes ex-President Fillmore say, "I am inclined to doubt, but I have no objection to his breeding." At Westland the visitor may always obtain whisky, brandy, gin, sherry, claret, and cards of honor. I never recommend any particular beverage. Our custom has been, and is to conduct the visitor to the sideboard, place him in the hands of the servant, and leave him to his own devices. I have never seen a human being, the insinuation that I have tried to destroy any one in whole or in part. My views of the Blair family, of the situation, and of what he might have done if he had been at the helm, are for the public, of which I am a humble member.

We are inclined to believe this letter genuine. First, because the accusation, as from ex-President Fillmore, is sufficient to provoke indignation at the first glance to suggest the necessity of an answer from "O. P. F." Secondly, because we know that he was at Cape Island the other day. Thirdly, because from a cloud of witnesses the truth of this letter in reference to Mr. Buchanan's sideboard can be substantiated. And lastly, because, although a good many dead men in these latter days have come from Westland, they were dead when they went there.

So much for the letter. Now for the merits of the case. Mr. Buchanan says, "If Ex-President did make the remark (which I am inclined to doubt) he has been guilty of an impertinence beneath his breeding." We think differently on both these points. Mr. Fillmore, with our correspondent in the premises, has been indulging in "Widow Clicquot," and "when the wine is in the wit is out." Under these circumstances, and with the "sober second thought," the funny allusion of Mr. Fillmore to the "O. P. F." was not only perfectly natural, but ought to be considered perfectly inoffensive. Next, it appears that while ex-President Fillmore's custom, in the case of a friend, is to sit down with him and partake of the smiles of the Widow Clicquot, the custom at Westland has been and is (and may it be!) to conduct the visitor to the sideboard, place him in the hands of the servant, and leave him there. This was Old Hickory's custom, and he was pronounced by Davy Crockett, the polliwog man, as ever saw, "the best Davy ever turned his back on me, so as not to see how much I would take." And yet Mr. Fillmore's custom has its merits, too. What is the custom of our ex-President, who "still lives" we have yet to learn. Who, however, that when called upon to drink any peculiar water to which he is not accustomed, he likes "a little brandy in it, to kill the animalcule."

All three of these ex-Presidents, however, although living like philosophers, more or less in their retirement from the cares of public life, are awfully behindhand in regard to the political situation and the progress of public events. We have, therefore, to suggest that if they will appoint a day for a joint visit to Washington Heights, or any other place, they will not only be entertained accordingly, they will not only be satisfied with a custom which we guess will satisfy them, but they will be posted up on public affairs down to Secretary Stanton's suspension from office, and the cause thereof, and the probable results. We will satisfy you to Mr. Jeff. Davis is out of the world, the greatest Pillmore that "Old Black" is not, "Old man in the world," and convince even "Old Buck" that the fight is not yet over between "Old Thad. Stevens" and Andy Johnson.—N. Y. Herald.

Garibaldi's Last Letter. General Garibaldi resembles other previous and contemporary revolutionists in his passion for letter writing. Under the date of July 27, he gives to the world his opinion of the reversed policy and of the attitude of the French Emperor.

"My Dear Separoli:—Our Nodari is in prison, under suspicion of having wished to overthrow the idolatry which a Government, the result of a foreign despotism, imposes upon us. Be it so, Christ died on the cross, and Savonarola at the stake. To-day the cross and the stake are not in fashion, notwithstanding the canonization of Ardue, the expiation of the holy office; and Nodari, content with the consolation of being in the right, will to-morrow carry the glorious title of forerunner of the religion of truth.

"Let us leave to the priests of fear, sad rubbish of an era of degradation, let us leave to them servile obedience to the foreigner and the mission of retarding progress. They are born here, and they are afraid of everything. Yesterday they were terrified by the soldiers of Bonaparte, and they were right. Three hundred thousand men with such an archbishop could not cope with two hundred thousand foreigners who forbade us to walk about our own house. But a strong voice cries to us:—'Italians, there is Rome; you have the audacity to call it yours, but you will not touch because it do not wish that you should. Your army, which has won Italy, and which will win France, whenever it is under my orders, you shall employ, half in Southern Italy and elsewhere, to aid the police and to inspire respect in these populations of brigands—and those other brigands, paid with our money, whom the Holy See and the Bourbon maintain as their custom has been, and ad majorem gloriam Dei. The other half of your army will see that my orders are obeyed on the Pontifical frontier—that is to say, it will form a close cordon on that frontier; it will prevent, under penalty of iron and lead, any red-shirt from troubling the tranquillity of my proteges of the Inquisition. Whenever the occasion shall arise, I will do you the honor to accept you as companions-in-arms of my brave soldiers.

"I repeat it, let the priests of fear do the trembling; that is natural and right; but that Italians remain indifferent to the national humiliation, oh! this is a thing which should wring every well-born heart and excite it to take in hand to wash out this ignominy.

"Affectionate salutations to Nodari, from his 'G. GARIBALDI.'"

Giuseppe evidently has the will to make trouble. We shall see whether he has the power.

Fatal Accident at Barnum's Museum. THE PROPRIETOR OF THE SHOOTING GALLERY SHOT. A somewhat singular occurrence took place at Barnum's Museum, resulting in the instant death of Mr. Edward Jones, the proprietor of the shooting gallery, which is located on the roof of the Museum building, in Broadway.

It appears, from what could be learned of the circumstances of the sad affair (the details of which are not given), that the shooting gallery after noon yesterday a party of gentlemen had been amusing themselves by firing with rifles at a target set up at the further end of the gallery. When they ceased firing Jones proceeded to the target for the purpose of painting it over to be obliterated by the next party of sportsmen, while he was so engaged a young man, about seventeen years of age, entered the gallery, and expressed a desire to test his skill at rifle firing. The lad who acted as assistant to Mr. Jones handed the young man a loaded rifle, and the young man, apparently not noticing Mr. Jones, or giving the slightest warning of his design, fired. The ball from the rifle entered the right breast of the proprietor, and he sank to the floor. The man in charge of the gallery screamed and fainted. The sad affair soon became known through the entire building, and caused the most intense excitement among the curiosity seekers on the premises, and a run was made into the room, which was soon filled. In the confusion and excitement attendant upon the knowledge of the affair, the young man through whose recklessness the affair had occurred, probably frightened at the result of his carelessness, fled from the building, and has not yet been heard from. The body of Jones was then examined, and he was found to be quite dead. Captain Mills, of the Eighth Precinct, was notified, and by the presence of the police order was finally restored. Coroner Wilsey was sent for, and proceeded to the Museum, where he received the remains, and caused them to be removed to an undertaker's, No. 237 Spring street, where an inquest will be held to-day. The young man who shot deceased is not known, but the lad who attends at the gallery states that he can identify him. Jones was a native of this city, and about twenty years of age. His residence was not ascertained.—N. Y. World.

Fees of a Royal Family. The sore feeling manifested by the English people at the treatment accorded by the Government to the Viceroy of Egypt in his recent visit is surely natural enough. Ismail Pasha is as good as a King, though his name he is only a Viceroy of the Sultan. He has always been a liberal friend of the Queen, and his behavior towards Englishmen travelling in his dominions has been remarkably generous. Yet the Royal family showed him only the abjectest apology for hospitality when he came to visit them; none of the Queen's many palaces—Whitehall, St. James', Kensington, Buckingham, and Hampton Court, Frogmore, Marlborough House, Clarence House, Windsor—was fitted up for his occupation; and Lord Dudley finally had to rescue him from a hotel by giving up his own mansion to his highest guest. These circumstances provoke inquiry whether the Queen's conduct was dictated by poverty or parsimony. Let us see what the royal incomes amount to. Here are the figures:—Queen Victoria, $1,800,000; Prince of Wales, $500,000; Prince of Wales, $300,000; Duke of Edinburgh, $75,000; Princess Royal of Prussia, $40,000; Princess of Hesse, $30,000; Princess Helena, $30,000; Duchess of Cambridge, $30,000; her eldest daughter, $15,000; her second daughter, $25,000; her third daughter, $15,000; her fourth daughter, $15,000. Besides this, a rich noble named Neeld, residing over all his own relations, bequeathed to the Queen $1,700,000, which she was graciously pleased to accept. There have been large savings since the death of Prince Albert in 1861, in consequence of the Queen living in cheap retirement, and leaving "the dignity of the Crown" to shift for itself; and if these savings be estimated at only one-sixth of her income, the amount cannot be under $2,000,000 more. Prince Albert's estate, which he bequeathed, left to the Queen all his accumulations, estimated at $5,000,000. With an annual income of $1,870,000, and a capital of not far from $2,000,000, Queen Victoria ought not to have allowed a royal guest, either to stop at a hotel or to be indebted for his entertainment to the liberal courtesy of an English nobleman.—N. Y. Tribune.

Bold Robbery at Saratoga. SARATOGA SPRING, August 13.—A daring and successful attempt at robbery was made at two o'clock this morning, when two men entered the Columbia Hotel and removed from the office an amount weighing about four hundred pounds, and containing only $150 in cash, besides valuables. The thieves were seen by several of the guests of the house as they departed with their plunder, but, supposing they were carrying a trunk, gave no alarm. There is no clue as yet to the thieves, but they are believed to be a part of the imported gang who have infested Saratoga during the races. There is a grand fancy dress ball at the Clarendon to-night.

HOLIDAY FOR SMITH'S ISLAND! FRESH AIR BEAUTIFUL SCENERY—HEALTHFUL EXERCISE—THE BEST KIND. MRS. MARY LAKEMEYER respectfully informs her friends and the public generally, that she will open the beautiful Island Pleasure Ground known as SMITH'S ISLAND, on SUNDAY next, May 5. She invites all to come and enjoy with her the delights of this favorite summer resort. 4 11

SUMMER RESORTS. CAPE MAY, CAPE ISLAND, NEW JERSEY. Since the close of 1866 much enterprise has been displayed at this celebrated sea-shore resort. New and magnificent cottages have been erected; the Delaware Bay has been remodelled; a fine park, with a well made one mile drive, has been inaugurated; and in all the essentials of a popular summer resort, a spirit of improvement is largely manifested.

The geographical position of Cape Island is in itself a popular feature, when properly understood. Situated at the extreme southern portion of the State, and occupying a neck of land at the confluence of the Delaware Bay with the Atlantic Ocean, it becomes entirely surrounded by salt water, hence favored by constant breezes from the sea.

The bluff furnishes a beautiful view of the Ocean, Delaware Bay, and picturesque back country, taking in Cape Henlopen distinctly at a distance of sixteen miles. The beach is acknowledged to surpass and outpoint upon the Atlantic coast, being of a smooth, compact sand, which declines so gently to the surf that even a child can bathe with security.

Added to these attractions is the fact that the effect of the Gulf Stream upon this point renders the water comparatively warm—a point not to be overlooked by persons seeking the ocean bathing.

The distance from Philadelphia to Cape Island is 81 miles by rail, and about the same distance by steamer down the Bay, and by either route the facilities for travel promise to be of the most satisfactory character. The Hotel has been remodelled, and the accommodations for about ten thousand persons. The leading Hotels are the Columbia House, with George F. Brown as proprietor; Longfellow Hotel, with Miller as proprietor; and United States, with West and Miller as proprietors, all under the management of gentlemen who have well-established reputations as hotel men. 6 12

ATLANTIC CITY. THE SURF HOUSE is nearer the ocean than any other first-class Hotel at this place. The terms are only $20 per week; half price for Children and Servants. W. M. T. CALER, 55 1/2 Proprietor. Ample accommodations for six hundred people.

MERCHANTS' HOTEL, CAPE ISLAND, N. J. This beautiful and commodious Hotel is now open for the reception of guests. It is on the main avenue to the Beach, and less than one square from the ocean. WILLIAM MANON, PROPRIETOR, 7 1
